Creating Calm and Stillness Through Color

The Art of Cortney Herron

Each year, we highlight an artist whose work embodies the creativity and connection at the heart of the Society6 artist community. For 2026, we're proud to feature painter and illustrator Cortney Herron, whose layered, calming compositions invite viewers to pause and find beauty in life's quiet moments. From her early beginnings with a paintbrush in hand to creating live at one of the largest interior design shows in the U.S., Cortney's journey is one of coming home to art and to herself.

Tell us about your journey as an artist. How did you get started, and what drew you to your current style?

I started painting at a very young age – around three years old. Art was always my calm, my therapy, and the space where I could just be myself. Even in school, I was the one who naturally gravitated toward creating visuals for group projects, and I was voted “Most Artistic” in high school. At the time, I never imagined I’d be an artist full time. Life moves quickly, and it often pulls us in different directions – like when I decided to study graphic design in college. For a while, I thought that path might lead me somewhere completely different. Looking back, I see my artist journey as a path home – a return to my truest self, which has always been an artist. Today, my current style reflects both that inner calm and my awareness of how fleeting life can be. I lean into earthy yet vibrant palettes, soft flowing forms, and layered textures that capture the richness of small, mindful moments.

What inspires your creative process? How do your ideas move from concept to finished work?

Much of my inspiration comes from being present and noticing life's subtle, often overlooked details – the quiet in-between moments that remind us to slow down. I usually start with a feeling or atmosphere I want to capture. From there, I build intentional color palettes that set the emotional tone, and then I layer shapes and textures to bring that energy to life. Whether I'm working traditionally or digitally, it's a slow, meditative process – a way of channeling stillness into something visual. The feelings I'm working to convey also signal to me when a piece is complete. Once I can sense that the painting fully holds the emotion I intended, I know it's time to stop.

You recently collaborated with Society6 on a live mural at HD Expo. What was it like creating in real time at one of the largest interior design shows in the US?

It was such an incredible experience. Normally, my process is more private and meditative, so creating in real time in front of an audience was very different – but equally exciting. The energy of the vendors and the constant flow of people at the show added to that excitement, and in many ways helped me embrace the idea of having an audience watch as I painted. It pushed me to trust my instincts, stay present, and let people into a process that's usually very internal for me. It was definitely one of those moments where I felt proud of how far I've come as an artist.

Your work often depicts vibrant and layered scenes. What stories or emotions do you hope to capture?
Especially with my original paintings, I find that viewers tend to sit with the work for a while to really take it in. I want my art to feel like an invitation to pause and reflect on the individual emotions that surface in that moment. Life moves so quickly, and it's easy to miss the beauty in everyday experiences. My pieces are layered to reflect both complexity and softness, creating a safe space that feels grounding. My hope is that viewers experience a sense of calm, a reminder to breathe, and maybe even a spark of curiosity about the small things we so often overlook.

If you had to describe your work in three words, what would they be?
In three words, I would describe my work as moody, grounded, and mindful.

Looking ahead, what are some dream projects you'd love to work on? Are there particular spaces where you feel your work would come alive?
I'd love to see my work in spaces designed for reflection and connection – hotels, restaurants, wellness centers, or any environment where people go to unwind and recharge. I also dream of collaborating with brands that value artistry and intentional design. Large-scale murals and immersive installations excite me too, especially in settings where people can physically step into the atmosphere of the work and feel surrounded by it.

What has been the most memorable project you've worked on, and why?
One of my most memorable projects was having my artwork selected to be featured in World Market stores here in the US. There was something surreal about seeing one of my illustrations on the shelves of a store I shop at regularly. It gave me such a confidence boost in what I was capable of and opened my eyes to the scale at which art can reach people. To know that my work could live in homes across the country was a true pinch-me moment – and a powerful reminder of how far I've come on my journey.

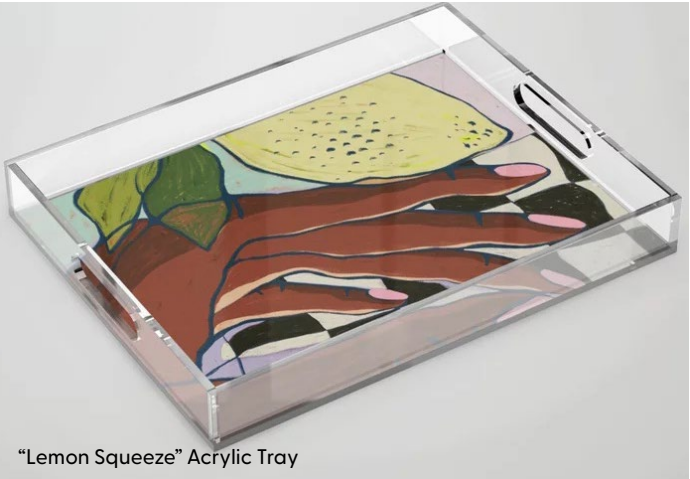

What do you hope people take away from your art? How do you want it to impact someone experiencing it in a hotel, restaurant, or private space?

I hope people feel a sense of peace and grounding when they encounter my work. My goal is for it to create a moment of pause – a chance to step out of the noise and into stillness. In that moment, I don't want viewers to overthink; instead, I want them to feel fully present, almost like the work is guiding them to take a deep breath. Whether it's in a hotel, restaurant, or private home, I want my art to act as a quiet companion – one that gently reminds you to slow down, breathe, and notice the beauty in the moment you're in.

PROJECT HIGHLIGHT

Hybrid Creative's Welcoming Gallery Wall

NiMo Restaurant by Feal Hospitality ©

CHALLENGE

Hybrid Creative faced the challenge of sourcing unique, curated, and affordable artwork that would align perfectly with NiMo's sophisticated yet casual Mediterranean atmosphere.

SOLUTION

Society6's Trade Program provided a diverse and accessible collection of high-quality artwork, enabling Hybrid Creative to achieve their vision of a Mediterranean inspired gallery wall efficiently and effectively.

Hybrid Creative is an interior design firm specializing in hospitality and luxury residential projects. Founded in 2023 by Paty Duran, who brought a decade of industry experience, Hybrid Creative has quickly made a name for itself by crafting unique, story-driven spaces. With a portfolio prominently featuring restaurants, Hybrid Creative emphasizes immersive experiences, connecting brand stories with compelling visual design.

Hybrid Creative aims to create memorable environments by meticulously aligning each design element with a client's brand narrative. For their recent restaurant project, NiMo, a Mediterranean eatery in Jupiter, Florida created for the restaurant group Feal Hospitality, they envisioned a large, diverse gallery wall showcasing various Mediterranean cultures. The challenge was finding artwork that felt both unique and curated without the typical commercial repetitiveness.

Paty needed artwork that would reflect NiMo's elevated yet casual atmosphere—pieces that offered a sophisticated visual narrative but remained affordable and accessible within tight project deadlines.

Paty discovered Society6 during her online research, finding exactly the kind of high-quality, diverse art pieces she needed. The extensive variety allowed her to quickly and conveniently source over 20 unique prints for the NiMo restaurant's extensive gallery wall. The collection included black-and-white photography, graphic prints, and vintage-inspired artwork, achieving precisely the curated yet inviting feel Paty aimed for. Society6's ease of navigation, coupled with the program's accessible pricing, made the sourcing process efficient and stress-free, perfectly aligning with her tight project timelines.

Upon receiving the artwork, Patty and her client were impressed by the quality, highlighting that the prints felt curated, elevated, and perfectly aligned with the restaurant's ambiance. The resulting gallery wall successfully created a cozy, inviting atmosphere reminiscent of an intimate European setting and has received enthusiastic feedback from restaurant visitors.

Hybrid Creative plans to continue using the Society6 Trade Program, valuing the convenience, quality, and curated aesthetic Society6 offers. Paty has shared Society6 as a resource with her clients, who have since adopted it for their personal projects as well. Moving forward, Patty expressed interest in exploring Society6's accessories and curated collections further, hoping to streamline her sourcing process even more comprehensively in future projects.

PROJECT HIGHLIGHT

The Desert Social: Transforming Guest Spaces With Art

Tal Herzlich - The Desert Social®

CHALLENGE

The client needed affordable, distinctive, and family-friendly artwork quickly for a vacation rental's game room redesign.

SOLUTION

Society6 provided timely, vibrant, and varied artwork options, meeting all project criteria and enhancing the space's overall appeal.

Tal Herzlich manages a successful short-term rental business, distinguished by its thoughtful design and engaging amenities. His primary role encompasses overseeing design projects, guest experiences, and operations, with the aim of consistently creating memorable stays and boosting bookings.

In upgrading a vacation rental's game room, Herzlich aimed to create an inviting, vibrant space suitable for large groups and families. The significant challenge was sourcing artwork that blended quality, affordability, and a distinct aesthetic that appealed to guests of varying ages. With a tight deadline due to an upcoming photo shoot, the need for quickly available and uniquely appealing decor was critical.

Herzlich discovered the Society6 Trade Program through an online recommendation from HostGPO and was immediately impressed by the extensive variety of artwork available. Society6's offerings perfectly met the project's key requirements—variety, affordability, quality, and alignment with the desired aesthetic.

Society6's intuitive platform and personalized trade assistance made the selection and ordering process seamless, ensuring timely delivery. The chosen artwork featured vibrant, playful pieces with a blend of retro and futuristic elements, precisely matching the envisioned atmosphere.

The artwork significantly elevated the game room, transforming it from a darker bar-style space to a colorful, fun, and engaging area, creating an inviting atmosphere enjoyed by guests of all ages. The feedback from the team was overwhelmingly positive, highlighting the fresh and dynamic feel the art brought to the room.

Given the excellent experience, Herzlich is highly likely to continue utilizing the Society6 Trade Program for future projects. He particularly appreciates the trade-focused benefits, quality products, personalized customer service, and prompt delivery. Moving forward, Herzlich is interested in exploring more options for larger-scale artwork and customizable framing solutions from Society6.
